

At the hospital there are tests that can detect the presence of a date rape drug in your blood and urine. Although these drugs leave your body quickly, tests can detect the drugs as much as 72 hours after they are ingested.

Arrests are made when "probable cause" is established to show that the incident happened in the manner you have reported. This is separate from the student conduct process, where it must be shown that it is "more likely than not" the incident occurred.

Know your Rights

You have the right to be treated with dignity and respect. You have the right to refuse to answer questions if you are uncomfortable sharing. You have the right to request that someone be with you during an examination or while filing a report. You have the right to choose whether you want to file a report.

Sexual Assault and Intimate Partner Violence and Stalking

It's hard to know what to do after experiencing sexual violence. You may be hurting, in denial, in shock or unsure what to do next. You may consider reporting, but don't know where to begin. Learning more about what steps you can take following sexual violence can ensure that you get the support you need when you or a friend needs it most.

It depends. See the back panel for a list of confidential and non-confidential resources.

If you wish to file a report or seek help from Public Safety, the police, or a resident assistant, the disclosure will be private between all necessary professional personnel, such as the Title IX Coordinator, Dean of Students, and other necessary participants in the student conduct process. If at any point you wish to withdraw a complaint and maintain confidentiality, you can. The University has an obligation to continue to investigate to determine patterns and larger risks within the community. If there appears to be a threat to campus, a campus-wide notification will be made regarding an incident of sexual or domestic violence. All measures will be taken to maintain privacy. In some cases when incidents of domestic violence, sexual assault, threats of violence, or
